

Tokyo—Asia's new financial hub?

Webinar organized by FinCity.Tokyo, co-hosted by Reuters Plus

Monday, 15th February, 2021, 17:00-18:00 (JST)

FinCity.Tokyo is pleased to announce “Tokyo—Asia's new financial hub?,” a webinar that will explore the strategic importance and strengths of the world's largest metropolis as the future financial hub of Asia. The event is co-hosted by Reuters Plus. Participation is free of charge.

Tokyo is emerging as a strong contender for Asia's next financial center. At a time of global uncertainty, Japan has steadfastly championed global free trade and drawn the attention of global investors. Meanwhile, the country is moving decisively to implement long-requested reforms aimed at creating a business environment that is attractive to financial foreign investment. But what measures are required for Tokyo to be recognized globally as Asia's new financial hub? And do the Tokyo Metropolitan Government and the national government have the right policies in place?

The panel discussion will bring together insightful perspectives from Ms. Yuriko Koike, Governor of Tokyo, and Mr. Hiroshi Nakaso, Chairman of FinCity.Tokyo, as well as high-level foreign investors from global asset management firms.

We look forward to welcoming you to the event.
